Lower quartile	61 % men, 39 % female.

Our pay gap has been reviewed and the findings show that KEL have fewer female employees working in and applying to work in senior management and professional positions and the skilled engineering and mechanical roles.

We are committed to fairness, equality and inclusion at KEL and we will work over the coming year to reduce the gender pay gap that exists. One of the ways we hope to do this is by working towards a more even male/female split across all roles including senior management and professional positions and skilled engineering and mechanical roles which, in our business and across manufacturing generally, traditionally attract men.

Guidance from documentation produced by ACAS and the Government Equalities Office was taken into account when producing the data and calculations used in preparing the pay gap report and the information provided in this report is accurate based on the data as of 4th October 2021.
